This month, local officers were flagged down by a member of the public to inform them of a deer in an alley on Goward Street in Market Harborough. Slightly confused why a deer would find itself in a residential part of town in daylight, they went to check it out. After a brief area search it was located in a garden and was surprisingly agile - jumping garden fences and walls of 6ft with ease and fighting itself in the reflection of patio doors. Not fancying a hot fuzz attempt at chasing it and following advice from the ranger of Bradgate Park, they disengaged to allow it the opportunity to leave the garden and find its own way home.

Sadly once out the garden the deer took the long way home via a sprint past the Police station, and in and out of traffic leaving drivers very confused. The good news was it found his way into the fields and got a well deserved rest and some peace and quiet.
