News

Two of our officers have been recognised by the Royal Humane Society for their life-saving actions after helping a man who had suffered devastating machete injuries. Sergeant Paige Eaves and PC Dominic Parry acted when the seriously injured victim arrived outside Market Harborough police station in July 2025. Despite the severity of his wounds and significant blood loss, the officers remained calm, administered emergency first aid and worked to keep him alive while urgent medical assistance was arranged. In recognition of their bravery, professionalism and commitment to saving life, both officers have been awarded Royal Humane Society (RHS) Certificates of Commendation. Andy Chapman from the RHS said; "As a result the man, who had been critically injured did survive. But without their treatment he would not have lived. They did a remarkable job in the most harrowing of circumstances."

This month officers neighbourhood officers carried out patrols at Saddington Car Boot Sale, helping to keep the event safe and providing reassurance to visitors, stallholders and the wider community. They were out throughout the morning, providing a highly visible and approachable police presence.

The aim of the patrols was simple: to be highly visible, approachable and reassuring. By being present in the community, officers were able to deter offending, provide reassurance and engage with members of the public. They enjoyed speaking with visitors and stallholders throughout the morning, and were pleased to see such a great turnout at the car boot sale.
